Rains Helping Water Problem

The heavy pull on water in storage has come to a stop for the first time in eight months, the Save Our Water Committee announced after completing November consumption records, which showed once again that the countywide water saving goal had been reached.

November, according to the water use pattern of the past, is the first month in which consumption is substantially reduced after the long warm season. The past month was no exception, the consumption being just a few million gallons less than the 2,207,590,000 gallons used in November 1950. The water saving goal was made despite the increase in population and military activity from a year ago.

Even more heartening than reaching the goal, the Save Our Water Committee believed, was the fact that the month ended with no less of the precious water in storage. While water was taken from storage on many days throughout the month, it was explained, a very small amount of runoff following last month's rains plus savings made on several other days when less water was used than was received by the aqueduct made it possible to end the month with no net loss in reserves.

Since there is now only one year's reserve to carry us through the two years required to complete the second barrel of the aqueduct, the committee pointed out, the importance of building up reserves cannot be over emphasized.

Herbert Peterson Now Cadet Major

Herbert N. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gunard Peterson, 1594 Drexel, has been made Cadet Major of ROTC at State College, this being the highest commission.

Herbert graduated from Pt. Loma High in 1946, soon enlisting in the Army. He was in the Army of occupation at Kimpo Airfield, Korea, for two years.

Last year he attended College at Missoula, Mont. and this year is majoring in physics and mathematics at State.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Hobbs, Bill and Alan, 8158 Mt. Vernon spent the week end in Los Angeles with relatives. Mrs. Hobbs' grandfather, Van McLamar of Roodhouse, Ill. came to Los Angeles via plane and is spending the winter here with Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs.

Scouters Attend Balboa Workshop

Miss Hammett is a well-known authority on camping techniques and administration. Many Scouters have her "Campcraft ABCs" or "Your Own Book of Campcraft" in their library. Until May 1949 Miss Hammett was a member of the Girl Scout National Staff, holding the office of director of the camping division.

Since that time she has been a camp consultant, free lance writer, and director of Derrybrook, a training center for outdoor living in South Londonderry, Vermont.

She is coming to San Diego to give more ideas on troop activities in the out-of-doors. She will be talking about such things as outdoor citizenship, nature and the outdoors, outdoor games and songs, and, if time permits, some simple outdoor skills.

Parents can learn much about what Scouting can do for their daughters, by attending this program.

Members of the Monterey Heights Neighborhood Club, including Scouters and Girl Scout mothers, will have their Christmas party at the Lutheran Church, Skyline and Alton, on Friday, December 14. There will be an exchange of gifts (not to exceed 50 cents) and refreshments.

Preceding the party, a business meeting will be held promptly at 1 o'clock.

Dr. White had the chairmanship put on him at a late date and when it was reported that Lemon Grove gave 85.8% of its quota he was asked to explain the method used. Having reported on the Porch Light one-night call, many workers concluded that the plan should be used in other communities.

U.S. Charges Commies 'Murdered' 5,500 American Prisoners of War

ATROCITIES—A wave of anger rolled across the United States with the grim announcement by Eighth Army officers that the Reds have killed about 5,500 Americans and 290 other U.N. prisoners of war. Civilian and senate reaction was immediate and brought demands the Korean truce negotiations be broken off and use of atomic weapons against the Communists.

Representative Crawford of Michigan summed up the average civilian's point of view by stating: "Let's get an answer from the Communists or let's quit negotiating and get tough and push the fight to a conclusion."

The atrocity report said the Chinese had killed 2,513 American prisoners, 10 British, 40 Turkish, 5 Belgian and 75 others of "unknown nationality". The remainder of the victims were slain by North Koreans before or after the Chinese entered the war. It was also estimated that the Chinese have killed at least 2,790 non-Korean prisoners and the North Koreans about 3,000.

The worse atrocity was blamed on the Chinese who killed 1,250 Americans near the Yalu river boundary of Manchuria between September 16 and 18, 1950.

The Eighth Army spokesman who released the atrocity story gave no reason for making it public at this particular time. One result, however, is expected to be the cementing of public opinion for a quick peace or an all-out fight using, if necessary, atomic weapons.

Immediately after the story was released there were reports of investigations into whether or not the death figures were correct. Latest reports indicated they might be revised upward.

PEACE TALKS—There was, however, every indication that a cease-fire might be in prospect for the Korean battle front and possibly an armistice by Christmas. Allied and Communist negotiators were reported nearing agreement on the latest U.N. proposal.

The Allied plan consisted of four points: (1) Hostilities to continue until an armistice is signed; (2) the present battle line to be a provisional cease-fire line; (3) this line to become final if a full armistice is reached within 30 days; and (4) if the armistice is not reached within 30 days, negotiations will start over by drawing a new cease-fire line based on whatever the battle line may be at that time.

The idea behind the Allied plan was to gain a cease-fire now, but at the same time keeping the pressure on the Reds so the final armistice agreement could be negotiated.

Distrust between the Allies and Communists remains the biggest hurdle in any peace settlement.

POLITICS—As a general rule politicians have always been reluctant of putting down in black and white definite opinions on domestic and foreign policies, especially before an important election. Sen. Robert A. Taft, at the moment leading contender for the GOP nomination for president, is an exception to the rule.

The senator recently wrote a book setting forth his views concerning U.S. foreign policy which he entitled, "A Foreign Policy for Americans". Before next year's campaign is over it could be that Senator Taft will wish he had never had the inspiration or time for his literary effort.

The senator, charging that President Truman put "all kinds of political and policy considerations" ahead of his interest in liberty and peace, has started a cyclone in political circles that will grow as the election gets nearer.

Taft also says in his book, "If the present trend continues, it seems to me obvious that the President will become a complete dictator in the entire field of foreign policy and thereby acquire power to force upon congress all kinds of domestic policies which must necessarily follow."

In rebuttal, the Democrats are charging that Taft is still an isolationist and the same man who said in 1940: "War is even worse than a German victory."

AGAIN 'NO'—For the second time in as many weeks President Truman had occasion to say "no" to a proposal that he meet with Premier Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Pleven for a big four conference. The suggestion was made by President Vincent Auriol of France.

The President contended the United Nations is the forum in which the leaders of the world should work for peace. He added, however, he would be willing to confer with Stalin if the Soviet leader came to Washington.

On several occasions the President has given the same answer to such a proposition, expressing the opinion that agreements with the Russians are not worth the paper on which they are written.

MEAT SUPPLY—The small town housewife will resume her role as the dictator of prices of steaks, chops and roasts in the neighborhood butcher shop in the next few months. That is the opinion of prominent cattle producers and farmers in the midwest corn belt where cattle and swine are finished for market.

Stockmen base their reasoning on mounting livestock production in the nation, with federally inspected beef plants turning out beef at a higher rate than in any November in four years.

Housewife resistance to high prices is credited with already rolling back pork prices from 1 to 12 cents a pound below ceiling levels.

Gross farm income is reported higher this year than last because of the large numbers of animals marketed at higher prices, but net profits are reduced because of higher operating costs.

Also of concern to cattle producers is rising imports of foreign meat, some of which has not yet been placed on the market. This country's imports of pork and beef this year are breaking all former records. Pork imports are up 60 per cent over last year.

AUTO TOLL—The National Safety Council, which has geared its statistical service to a weekly basis, reported last week the death figure from automobile accidents has reached 995,600. The millionth death will occur during the third week of December, the NSC predicts.

"This tragic event would make a mockery of all that Christmas stands for," Ned H. Dearborn, council president said. "I appeal to everyone to drive and walk with extreme caution during the next few weeks. The millionth traffic death can be delayed if everyone does his part."

NEW TAXES—While vacationing in Florida, President Truman is reported to be working on another request to congress for increased taxes. The report states he will definitely ask for more money when the lawmakers come back to work in January. Only the amount of the increase is yet to be determined.

The report immediately drew the fire of Republicans and Democrats alike. Several stated they will not vote for any more taxes. And Senator George of Georgia, chairman of the powerful finance committee which handles tax measures in the senate, has already stated he will not vote for an increase "short of all-out war or a war crisis."

The lawmakers are well aware of the fact that 1952 is an election year and that a tax increase is always an unpopular measure.

UNITED NATIONS—Talk continued in the United Nations last week on disarmament with the Western powers outlining details of their plan and the Russians proposing one of their own, a dusted-off version of one that has been rejected by the West a number of times.

Not even the most optimistic member of the United Nations believed that anything other than talk would come from the proposed plans. The rival disarmament plans are attracting a great deal of space in newspapers in all parts of the world, but the general public seems to view them as propaganda.

IS STALIN ABOUT TO DIE?

Rumors Say Premier's Heart Weakened

Is Premier Stalin of Russia about to die?

That question was being asked by world leaders around the globe last week as rumors began circulating in Berlin that Stalin's health has deteriorated greatly in the past month or so.

The Premier, who will be 72 next month, is believed making his usual winter visit to a Black Sea resort to escape Moscow's cold weather.

He was absent from the tribunal atop Lenin's tomb when the Soviet armed forces paraded through Red Square in Moscow November 7, the 34th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. The rumor persists that he was not there because of the heart condition, from which he has suffered for years.

BLOOD CHAMP . . . B. H. Horton, Royston, Ga., believes he has set some sort of record as a blood donor. He is suffering from a rare disease which manufactures more blood than needed. He has given 168 pints of blood in three years of donating.

TRUMAN APPOINTEE . . . Vice president of the Chase National Bank of New York, Edwin A. Locke, Jr., was appointed by President Truman as coordinator of technical and economic aid in near east with the personal rank of ambassador.

COMFORTS WIFE . . . Joseph Hrostoski, Wrightwaters, L.I., comforts wife after her arraignment on murder charge in death of her son, Joseph, 3. She admits flooding car with exhaust fumes through a hose. A daughter, Mary, 1, is in critical condition in a hospital and may not recover.

DREAD DISEASE VICTIM . . Earl Vensel, researcher at the Pittsburgh school of public health searching for cures for virus infections hitting our troops in Korea, has fallen victim to a virus disease himself—encephalitis.

ROYAL VISITOR . . . Prince Mishaal Ibn Abdul Aziz, son of King Ibn-Saud of Saudi Arabia, arrived recently on the Queen Elizabeth for a visit in the United States. The young prince was recently appointed minister of defense.

SAVED FROM WRECKAGE . . . In Flushing, Long Island, New York, Dewey Heil, an American Legion post commander, proudly holds a bottle of Scotch whisky which miraculously remained intact and unbroken in Heil's car after another car collided with it, with the results shown in the photograph. The bottle of whisky was to be delivered to the final living member of a "last man's club" of the Queens police post.

WEST BERLIN UNIVERSITY . . . A group of students look at the prize-winning model of the new West Berlin free university which is expected to be constructed for their use within a year. Funds for the construction of the building were made available through a Ford foundation grant of $1,309,500 made last July. The university was designed by Berlin architects Franz Heinrich and Gustav Muller. The library will hold one million books and the lecture hall 1.5 million students.

PRETTY AS A BIRD IN A CAGE . . . The enterprising photographer at Miami Beach, Florida, looked for something to tie in the resort's mild winter climate with the opening of the 1952 basketball season, and the next thing model Toby Gerard knew she had been thrown for a loop. A right fair crip shot we would say. Hope the teams down Florida way don't start using pretty swim suit girls for basketballs.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Mrs. Truman

MRS. TRUMAN makes no bones about her desire to turn the White House over to new tenants.

At a reception the other day, the first lady confided to a friend: "This is a terrible life. We don't have any privacy at all. If I want to go across the hall to see the President or Margaret, I have to get dressed up. I can't just slip a kimono on, for you never know who you'll find in the hall. I'll be glad when we get back to Independence and can live like human beings."

Mrs. Truman said she thought the government should provide private living quarters away from the White House for the first family. She was referring, of course, to the fact that Secret Service vigilance has been tightened since the attempt on the President's life, so that guards are on every floor of Blair House.

The Taft Brothers

Taft forces are so sore at brother Charles Taft for announcing for Governor of Ohio that they may put genial Congressman George Bender, a GOP stalwart, into the Republican primary in Ohio to run against brother Charles.

There are several reasons for this row over the younger member of the Taft family. Primarily, Bob Taft forces are sore because two Tafts in a political race cause confusion and make the public think one family is out to dominate the state.

Second, brother Charles has not been regular. He was a friend of Franklin Roosevelt, voted for him a couple of times and served under him in the Federal Security Administration and later in the State department during the war. Charles also bolted the regular Republicans in Cincinnati where he has been a member of the city council and helped elect a Democratic mayor, Albert Cash.

Backstage Boss

Democrat Frank McHale, towering boss of the onetime Indiana 2 per cent club machine, makes no bones about the fact that he put Hoosier banker Frank McKinney across as Democratic national chairman, coached him at his first press conference, dictated letters for him to sign, and arranged his appointments.

McHale nabbed the committee chairmanship for his protege by the old adage of "being thar fustest with the mostest."

Jake Arvey, the Chicago Democratic boss, tipped McHale off that Bill Boyle was on the skids and suggested that the big Hoosier might like the job himself. Whereupon McHale put in a long-distance call for his friend and fellow Irishman, Kingmaker Matt Connelly of Mr. Truman's staff.

"I know just the type person you need to restore the prestige of the National Committee," he said. "He should be young, a successful business executive, clean as a hound's tooth, and a loyal Democrat."

"If you know that kind of a guy, you've bought yourself a national chairman," Connelly said.

McHale then recommended Frank McKinney who both fits the description and did a bang up job in the Pentagon. Kingmaker Connelly saw to it the door was bolted, refused to let other Democrats with candidates of their own see the President.

Washington Items

Governor Dewey did not meet secretly with Eisenhower at the Waldorf as reported last week. A broadway columnist got that one mixed with a Waldorf meeting which did take place between Dewey, Senator Duff of Pennsylvania, Herbert Brownell, the Dewey GOP mentor, and Gen. Lucius Clay. Georgia-born Clay, a lifelong Democrat, is now in the Eisenhower camp. The meeting discussed ways and means of rounding up delegates despite the fact that Ike cannot declare until next spring.

There's not the slightest question but that Ike started life as a Democrat. His first speech at the age of 18 at Abilene, Kansas, was at a Jackson Day dinner.

Taft-ites are suspected of putting a neat one over on Arthur Krock. He reported that Ike would come over to the Taft side if the senator would desert the isolationists.

Washington Pipeline

Only diplomat who got the VIP treatment at the Soviet embassy party last week was Premier Mossadegh of Iran. The Russians supplied Mossadegh with a four-man escort to run interference through the big crowd which clustered three deep around the caviar. (American guests at the Soviet embassy shun Soviet champagne which is sweet and usually hot, but make a beeline for the bowls of caviar as soon as they arrive.

Government's Baby Book Is Best Seller; 28,000,000 Distributed

WNU Washington Bureau

Millions of people all over the world have paid approximately $5,600,000 for the government's baby book and best seller, "Infant Care," which has now reached a distribution of 28,000,000 copies.

Varying philosophies on the care of children from the time they are born till they celebrate their first birthday can be traced throughout the nine editions of this booklet, the first of which appeared in 1914.

In that year, for instance, babies didn't get a chance at even a tablespoon of strained fruit juice until they were 7 or 8 months old, but the 1951 baby is usually getting 2 ounces a day by the time he is two months old. The 1914 baby could not have solid foods at all during his first year, other than soft egg, crisp toast, or zwieback. The 1951 edition of Infant Care, however, says: "Your doctor will decide when your baby needs solid foods in addition to milk. Some start giving these extra foods when a baby is only a few weeks old, others wait until babies are 3 or 4 months old."

Thumb sucking was sharply criticized in early editions of Infant Care. The first edition even recommended pinning the sleeve of the baby's jacket down over the fingers of the offending hand for several days and nights to stop thumb sucking. This attitude has been greatly modified over the years, and the accepted idea now is that thumb sucking is one of the first pleasures that a baby gets. Many mothers now say that it seems to result in a very satisfied child.

Cod liver oil was added to the baby's diet in the 1926 edition, and was identified as containing Vitamin D in the 1929. Frozen foods are approved in the present edition.

Infant Care is sometimes called the "mother's bible". It has been translated into 8 languages. The government printing office sells the bulletin at 20 cents per copy, and has become accustomed to many requests for simply "the book".

INFANT CARE has undergone major changes since it was first published. During its lifetime, advances in medicine, science, and in what we know about the emotional development of children have altered much of the philosophy which the book carries.

In compiling information for the current edition, bureau specialists talked to doctors, nurses, social workers, psychiatrists, nutritionists, and parent educators on what the book should cover. They asked parents, living in both the city and the country, what they particularly wanted the book to discuss.

The first draft of the revised booklet was submitted for review to about 70 persons outside the bureau, including 37 doctors, 6 psychologists, 7 nurses, 3 nutritionists, 1 anthropologist, 6 social workers, 8 parents, and 2 parent-education workers.

Fan mail throughout the years of Infant Care's publication has been tremendous. From places as distant as Nigeria have come requests for it, and copies have even turned up in small Chinese villages.

The present edition of Infant Care, like those before it, is an attempt to bring together the most widely accepted modern ideas on the care of children. One unchanging philosophy throughout all its editions has been that babies need a maximum of tender, loving care to grow into healthy, happy, children.

Don was assigned to help the sound effects man, and wound up by portraying a neighing horse.

NARROW ESCAPE

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

LAURA knew her first feeling of fear when Jud took the whip from its socket and flicked it across the backs of the plodding horses.

3-Minute Fiction

She had been watching the clouds pile out of the northwest with amazing speed for the past 15 minutes. But this was April, and there was no wind at all. Also, the day was mild, almost sultry. It was hard to imagine a blizzard even in Nebraska.

Beauty and Prince broke into a lumbering trot. The rhythm of the crunching wheels of the heavy farm wagon increased in tempo. Beneath them, at the foot of the long slope, Laura could see the buildings of their farm.

The cloud bank came toward them with astonishing speed, hanging an impenetrable gray curtain from sky to earth as it swept across the prairie. Jud stood up and lashed out with the whip.

Little Luey began to cry, and a moment later Jud, junior, joined in with lusty bawls. Laura huddled one under each arm and said: "Sh! Sh, now!" But when she lifted her anxious eyes, she felt again the terror.

The farm buildings were not more than a quarter of a mile away. Now they could hear the roar of the wind. It drowned out the crunch of wheels; it plucked Jud's cries from his lips and sent them screaming back over his shoulder. The blizzard struck them like a blast from the Arctic.

Laura drew the heavy bear rugs about the children, and bound her own scarf about her face. She could no longer hear the crying of the youngsters, nor the clopping of the horses' hoofs, nor Jud's shouts.

There was no point in looking up. She tried it once. It was like being suspended in a great vacuum with moving, screaming walls. Even the outlines of the horses were blotted out.

The progress of the team slowed. Jud was no longer using the whip. He sat humped forward, barely visible behind a veil of snow.

AFTER awhile Laura had the feeling that the team was swinging in a great arc. A new terror seized her. The road was straight. There was not a curve for miles.

She screamed at Jud, tugged at his sheepskin coat. He bent down and she tried to make him understand. He shook his head and pointed down. She bent forward, could barely make out the right front wheel. It was running even with the whippletree, had not turned at all.

She settled down once more, hugging the children close. Cold crept in under the blankets. Snow piled up in her lap and on her shoulders. The world had gone mad.

Again she had that feeling of swinging around. She fought it until the horror of it threatened her sanity. Then she poked her head from beneath the blankets. Jud was crouched forward, tense, pulling on the nigh rein. She beat against his shoulder.

"We've missed the house! I'm turning back!" She could barely catch the words. A cold chill, a hideous fear congealed the blood of her veins. Missed the house! It would be hours—possibly days before the storm ended. They had no provisions aboard the wagon. They would freeze.

She clutched the children against her. They never should have started out. They wouldn't have if it had been a month later.

The storm attacked with a new fury, an uncombatable violence. It lashed and screamed and laughed in hideous triumph at their helplessness. Time once more stood still.

Laura was roused by someone rubbing snow against her cheeks. She sat up, trying to cry out, remembering the children. "They're all right," Jud said, "I gave the horses their heads. They took us home. Wouldn't have made it otherwise."

Stiff-legged, carrying a child in either arm, she went through the shed and into the kitchen. The heat beat against her face. She set the children on the table and went to the stove. The kettle was still steaming. In another five minutes they would have caught.

Increase in Third-Class Mail Rate Is Desirable

By Wright A. Patterson

EVERY TIME the mail carrier delivers mail at my door it consists largely of third class mail, circulars, solicitations of one kind and another. Things I did not ask for, do not want, and do not read, though they are made to appear as letters through the use of special envelopes, one flap of which is folded in so as to make it appear sealed.

An increase in third class mail should be considered, raising it to the price of second class or letter mail. This could be done without imposing any added cost to the people, other than those who use it for sales or other solicitations. Any increase on letter mail affects all of the people and constitutes an added government burden for all to pay. Any increase on second class mail, newspapers and periodicals, would mean an increase in the subscription prices on the newspapers and periodicals, which the public, the subscribers, would pay. An increase on third class mail would accomplish one of two things, or possibly both. It would increase the postal revenues by all or more, than the present annual deficit, if any, or it would reduce the amount of mail, and the cost of postal operations.

It could do some of both, and it would not cost the people of the nation generally a penny.

The only ones to be affected would be those using the postal facilities as a means of promoting sales for their products or services, those whose business is that of preparing direct mail advertising copy, and the printers who produce the circulars that are used in such advertising campaigns. All of them together represent but a limited few, not enough to cause any fear of reprisals on the part of those who might vote for the elimination of the third class, or for the repeal of any increase in second class congress may have made in an effort to balance the postal expenditures and receipts.

If the postoffice department has an actual annual deficit, a fact that has not been proven, the practical and sensible way to remedy that condition is by an increase in third class mail. Newspapers and periodicals should collectively urge that method.

Should you be one of the 83 million holders of life insurance policies, or one of the 50 millions who have savings accounts in the banks and building and loan organizations, or one of the 80 million owners of government bonds, or one of the 100 million social security card holders, or one of the 38 million workers expecting to draw industrial insurance, or one with any investment from which it is expected to derive revenue to support you during declining years, you have a very definite interest in inflation. The dollars you would receive today from any one of these sources would pay for less than one half the things you need than would have one half of the dollars as late as even 10 years ago. That is inflation, and it seriously effects each one of us.

What can we, as individuals, do about it? We can demand action on the part of our representative in congress and our two United States senators and demand action in such terms that they will not fail to understand the full meaning of that demand. Tell them you want less new money issued, the government debt reduced, all payments in any form to all minority groups stopped, all government expenditures, unless they can be shown as essential, reduced by at least a million.

A sufficient number of demands will get such results, along with a decrease in taxes, and getting those results will stop inflation. That is your part in the fight against the inflation monster.

The Republican nominee for the presidency may be left to write his own platform, but what about nominees for the house of representatives and the senate. Are they to be entirely on their own in their campaigns?

Attorney General McGrath has headed a crusade for honesty and integrity in sports and athletics. Why not a crusade for honesty and integrity in government. It is needed there more than in sports and athletics.

Preserving Foliage

The beauty of autumn foliage can be preserved for winter bouquets. If you want to preserve a fresh spray of colorful leaves, lay them flat as possible on an old newspaper and apply a thin coat of fresh white shellac, making sure to cover the stems where they join the heavier twig. Allow to dry thoroughly and then repeat the process on the opposite side. A second or third thin coat of shellac will add to the stiffness of the leaf so that it will not break easily or curl.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Peppers

Good-quality fresh peppers whether the sweet type or the hot type, should be fresh-looking, firm and well-shaped.

Sandwich Filling

A hearty sandwich filling can be made from a combination of chopped cooked meat, green peppers, sweet pickles, horseradish and prepared mustard.

Brighten Ebony

To brighten ebony, apply oil. Rub oil with a piece of flannel and polish with chamois.

Holding Screws

Do you have trouble with screws which have come loose in wood knobs such as are on chests? Use twine soaked in shellac and wrap it around the screws while wet. After setting screws in place on the knobs, allow to dry for a full day. Then the knobs will hold fast.

Olive Oil

Olive oil has many uses in the home in addition to its age-old role of adding flavor to cooked, broiled and fried foods—and, of course, salads. Here are a few: Brass will keep bright longer and need polishing less often if it is rubbed with olive oil after polishing. Sprinkle the oil lightly on a piece of warm flannel and rub well into the brass.

Vitamin-C

Cook fresh peppers quickly in little water as possible so that they will not lose their vitamin-C content.

New Year in 4-H Electric Projects Started

Dan Turner, Director of visual education for the San Diego Gas and Electric Company held the first of a series of three 4-H Leader training meetings on electricity last week.

The 4-H Electric project, started last year in San Diego County, is composed of seven units of work for 4-H members, including work on tools, safety, wiring, light, heat, controls, power and measurement. 4-H members are being enrolled in both first year and second year projects in electricity in local 4-H Clubs throughout the county. Each group of members conducts its project work under the guidance of local volunteer 4-H project advisors.

This first Leader Training meeting included demonstrations, illustrations, discussion and moving picture pertaining to the tool and safety project units. Mr. Burke Breedlove, of the San Diego Gas and Electric Company, was guest speaker and led the discussion of safety with particular reference to grounding wires and equipment.

The second Leader Training meeting to cover lights and wiring will be held Wednesday, January 2, at the Farm Advisor's office.

Sixteen 4-H project advisors were present from 12 4-H Clubs in San Diego County. There are now 105 4-H Club members enrolled in electricity projects.

Adams invites all growers to attend this Farm Bureau meeting at the Escondido High School library, 7:30 p. m., next Monday.

These questions are the main topics of a Farm Bureau Poultry Department meeting to be held at the High School cafeteria, 7:30 p. m., next Tuesday at Vista, according to Allan Coulson, chairman of the Poultry Department of San Diego Farm Bureau.

A panel discussion with representatives from all phases of the industry is planned. ### PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY A BIG JOKE

The California Presidential Preference Primary is a big joke—or would be if the situation were not so serious.

Under the California law no delegation can be selected unless it is instructed for a particular candidate.

Always a favorite son candidate files early in the game, hence causes other candidates to stay out of California. Therefore the voters who may favor some one other than the favorite son, have no say. They are deprived of any expression of choice, which is the very opposite of what was intended by the primary law.

Nor does the California law permit the filing of an unpledged delegation.

There is enormous strength building up in the Republican ranks for a candidate not a favorite son, but that candidate has said he is not filing for a place on the California ballot.

The California law also says that no candidate can be filed without his express permission. There again the voters are denied the right of expression.

There are going to be a number of candidates for the Republican nomination, and also for the Democratic, if President Truman does not run.

Unless the candidates' names are permitted on the ballot without their permission, both Republican and Democratic voters are going to vote for one man in their respective primaries, or not vote at all.

This defect in the California Presidential Preference Primary law should be rectified by the General Assembly before 1956, so as to give the people the right of expression, as intended by the primary election law. Otherwise we would be better off to return to the caucus system.

BETTER HEALTH for all

There are an estimated two and one-half to three million alcoholics in this country—people who cannot control their drinking and whose indulgence in liquor is detrimental to their jobs, reputations, or family lives, as well as their health.

Alcoholism is an illness like other physical and mental disorders, not a disgrace or crime as many still believe. Public enlightenment has removed false stigma from other real illnesses and the day may soon come when people realize that the alcoholic is not a criminal, but a genuinely ill person who needs medical care and intelligent aid.

One aim of current studies on alcoholism is to find out why some people can drink moderately and others cannot without risking the danger of alcoholism. It is believed that alcoholism has its roots in either physical or psychological factors, or both. Studies reveal that many victims of alcoholism have some personality disorder—inferiority complex, chronic anxiety, constant frustration, extreme boredof, or a tendency to dodge the responsibilities of life.

We have also reason to believe that excessive drinking may have a physical basis—that the chemical make-up of certain individuals gives them an abnormal susceptibility to liquor. It is hoped that some day a person can be warned of this susceptibility through a study of his body chemistry and take measures to ward off the heartache and suffering of alcoholism.

Whatever its cause or basis, alcoholism is best treated by a doctor or by a psychiatrist or other medical specialist whom the doctor may recommend. Amateur advice of amateur "psychiatrists" may make things worse for the alcoholic. Drugs recently developed for alcoholic treatment should not be taken unless under medical prescription and supervision.

Many alcoholics are also helped in arresting their drinking through the efforts of a group of humane and intelligent ex-alcoholics known as "Alcoholics Anonymous." Members of the association, which has the approval of many doctors, unselfishly lend every assistance to the person who seeks it, regardless of personal sacrifice.

The serious present-day problem of alcoholism will be solved through the tireless efforts of the medical world, lay organizations like the AA's, and scientists studying the emotional aid physical aspects of the disorder. Meanwhile, public realization that the alcoholic is a sick person and not a criminal could do much to help those who cannot control their drinking.

Greek Display on Office Bulletin

Students from Mrs. Darroch's 7-2 class, who are now working on a unit of ancient and modern Greece, have a display of class projects on the office bulletin board. Materials include maps, reports, original drawings, and the Greek alphabet. Electra Cosollias, eighth grade teacher, lent many interesting cards and pictures to the group for this display. Students contributing include Fred Sanders, James Glazebrook, Gordon Hoard, Robert Kinyon, Barbara Adams, Keith Havens, Mildred Yamashita and John Steffen.

Vista La Mesa School

Mrs. Cornelius' fifth grade class will present a verse choir program for the PTA program this (Thursday) evening at the school at Vista La Mesa. Their selections will be "Jest 'Fore Christmas," by Eugene Fields; "I Am a Happy Christmas Wind" by Mary Madeleva; and Bible verses from the second chapter of Luke, giving the story of the Nativity.

The group will wear white choir robes, hemmed with bands of blue. Class members made a stained glass window on parchment paper for the program.

Boys Outspell Girls at Recent Match

At an assemb'y program last Friday at Lemon Grove intermediate, Mrs. Darroch's 7-2 class presented an o'd fashioned spelling bee for the 500 students present.

Six boys easily defeated the all-girl team. At no time did Mr. Solleder, pronouncer, give the groups a word from a list of 500 difficult words that some member was unable to spell.

The winning team included David Newell, with a perfect score, Gordon Hoard, Robert Kinyon, James Glazebrook, Fred Sanders and John Steffen. Girls were Leah Conlee, Janalee Johnson, Georgina Grove, Cynthia Reames, Vicki Crawford and Jeanne Jackson.

Kathleen Pfister announced the program and gave the welcoming address to the sixth graders who met with the seventh and eighth graders for the first time since the intermediate school was formed last month.

Musical numbers on the program included a violin solo by James Glazebrook, two accordian numbers by Jeanne Jackson, clarinet solo by Fred Sanders, and clarinet duet by LeRoy Keri and Fred Sanders.

Mrs. Holmquist's sixth grade students have taken a very active interest in spelling. Boys and girls with perfect test papers may keep their papers on the bulletin board as long as they continue with perfect spelling. Some students have had papers on display for several weeks. Girls in the room are organizing a spelling team to challenge a seventh grade group at a January meeting.

The large class mural on Alaska is nearing completion. Then they will construct a Christmas mural.

Miami: Polluted Playground

As we opened hearings in Miami, it oppressed us that an area so blessed by nature could be so polluted by man. The fabulous coast had become the plunder-ground as well as the playground for America's most vicious criminals.

With the nod of well-paid so-called law enforcement officers, Miami was the winner capital of the national crime syndicate.

A great deal of this has been changed. The senate crime committee's investigation bolstered the efforts of Miami's decent citizens to strike back against the underworld.

Even months after our disclosure in Miami, the lid still was clamped tight upon illegal bookmaking, in so far as any large scale activity was concerned, and many of the gambling casinos run by out-of-state hoodlums were shut down.

Let us begin with the story of Walter Clark, sheriff since 1933 of neighboring Broward County, of which prosperous Fort Lauderdale is the seat. In Sheriff Clark's bailiwick, there were three notorious gambling joints. Among the out-of-state racketeers said to be associated with them—as well as in Miami casinos—were the infamous Joe Adonis, the brothers Meyer and Jake Lansky, Vincent (Jimmy Blue-Eyes) Alo, and bookmaker Frank Erickson (since imprisoned), all of New York City and New Jersey; and, from Detroit, Joe Massei and William G. Bischoff, alias Lefty Clark.

I asked Clark why he violated his oath of office by ever letting them operate. He gave the brazen reply: "I was elected on the liberal ticket, and the people want it and they enjoy it."

Clark went on to reveal he had been well acquainted with gambler Jake Lansky for 12 or 15 years and that Lansky among others, "contributes to the campaign."

In Miami (Dade County), we looked into the activities of James A. (Smiling Jimmy) Sullivan, a former traffic policeman who had been sheriff since January, 1945. The voluble Jimmy, who wasn't smiling much toward the end of his examination, admitted that his assets jumped from $2,500 to approximately $70,000 during his five years in office.

Of Smiling Jimmy's performance on the witness stand, the committee, in its report, had to conclude: "Much of Sullivan's testimony was vague and evasive and the committee does not consider it credible." The fantastic aftermath, however, was this:

After a grand jury indicted Sullivan, charging him with neglect of duty, failing to enforce gambling laws, and permitting deputies to accept bribes, Governor Fuller Warren, in October, 1950, suspended him from office. Early in April, 1951, however, the indictment having been dismissed on a technicality, the Governor reinstated him.

A tragic sidelight was told us by George Patton, who, after serving his country honorably in World War II, became a Miami Beach policeman and later a deputy. He declared he had intended to be an honest officer but soon "learned that law enforcement didn't always operate the way I thought it did."

Patton said that when he later became a deputy of Sheriff Sullivan, he collected "close to $50,000" in bribes over a period of nine months for protecting gambling on Miami Beach. He was the "bag man," or collector, he said.

Two other Miami Beach hotels had special prominence in the operations of mobsters. One was the Sands hotel operated jointly by Alfred (Big Al) Polizzi, one-time Cleveland mobster and Dave Glass and Benny Street, both of whom had convictions in Philadelphia as horse-book operators. We also learned from questioning Polizzi that his good friend, John Angersola, silently held half of Polizzi's 25 per cent interest in the Sands. Angersola, in addition to interests in the Wofford and the Sands, had a piece of still another mob-favored hotel, the Grand.

Purely local and state political matters, of course, were outside of our jurisdiction, but we had a legitimate interest in Governor Warren's 1948 campaign financing because of a $100,000 contribution from William Johnston, the Chicago and Miami horse and dog track operator, and long time associate of the Capone gang.

Johnston insisted, of course, that it was merely his "strong friendship" for the governor which prompted the gift.

The gigantic operation of the S&G bookmaking syndicate was another major avenue of inquiry. The syndicate, which itself admitted that it grossed $26,000,000 in 1948, was started in Miami Beach in 1944 by five "local" boys.

For a long time, the S & G monopoly over Miami Beach bookmaking was almost 100 per cent complete. Even the then-powerful Frank Erickson, who had paid $45,000 for a three-month bookmaking concession at Meyer Schine's luxurious Roney Plaza hotel, came to grief when he attempted to buck it. Schine, after he broke off an arrangement with S & G and made the contract with Erickson, was visited by Detective Pat Perdue of the Miami Beach police. Schine said that Perdue told him he should not let the contract go to Erickson.

There was only one flaw in the S&G's highly efficient operation. It became so profitable that it aroused the cupidity of the prosperous crimesters from Chicago who, in the approved manner of upper bracket-hoodlumdom, wintered on beautiful Miami Beach, soaking up the sun on their daily walks from hotel to horse parlor.

Then, as our Committee reconstructed the story, the ubiquitous and sinister partnership of Guzik & Accardo entered the picture. It is the Committee's contention that Guzik & Accardo acting for the Chicago-Capone Syndicate, dispatched Harry Russell, a Chicago gambler to S&G early in 1949.

Understandably devoted to their $26,000,000 business, the S&G partners didn't want to be "muscled." They declined. The Chicago interests were disappointed but gentlemanly about it. Nothing crude transpired.

Their Mr. Russell simply began building up a syndicate of his own, and bookies at a number of plush hotels, dominated by the Chicago mob, flocked over to Russell.

Next, Governor Warren's crime investigator, W. O. Crosby, appeared. Here things get a little complicated: His friend, Russell, Crosby conceded to us, started feeding him information on various books that he might raid, and Crosby started raiding them. All were places operated by S&G bookies.

Finally came the crusher: S&G was buying its wire service from the local distributor of the same Continental Press that already had undergone the experience of being squeezed by Guzik and Accardo. This service was abruptly shut off, leaving S&G paralyzed.

In just about 10 days, the S&G partners took another look at Harry Russell and decided they had been wrong. They decided to recapitalize their business—though they admitted to us that they really did not need any capital—and to let Russell have one-sixth interest. The price they asked for this one-sixth interest in a business that had grossed $26,000,000 the previous year was $20,000.

At the same time Mr. Russell bought into the S&G for $20,000, the S&G "boys" happened to buy a boat named the Clari-Jo. The price of the Clari-Jo happened to be $20,000, and the owner of the boat—lots of coincidences here—just happened to be Tony Accardo.

Accardo, when we had him in the witness chair later, refused repeatedly to answer questions about it. Finally, however, Senator Wiley innocently inquired, "Who baptized that name, Clari-Jo? Accardo, momentarily off-guard, replied, "That is my wife's first name and my middle name." As spectators reared with merriment, the crestfallen hoodlum rubbed his jaw with the hand that has a dove tattooed between the thumb and trigger-finger.

"I fell into that one!" he blurted.

Guzik and Accardo's 1949 tax return showed a loss of $7,252 due to "S&G Service."

Anyway, the S&G squeeze hit lemons instead of the jackpot. The combination of the senate committee's disclosures and the opposition of the law-abiding elements in Miami Beach finally generated a heat that even the powerful S&G syndicate could not cool off. Abruptly, "the boys," without consulting their Chicago associate, Mr. Russell, decided to go out of business.

Attempt To Re-Create Crime Body Fails

WASHINGTON — A Republican proposal to re-create the Senate Crime Investigating Committee and give it $150,000 for a new probe was voted down by a Senate Commerce committee.

Chairman Johnson (D., Col.) said that the proposal was defeated because Democrat members of the committee felt the Senate District of Columbia committee, now looking into crime conditions in Washington, has the authority to extend its investigations to other parts of the country if necessary.

He also pointed out that the previous committee investigations had left a big calendar of legislation.

The session did approve four anti-gaming bills, three of which were recommended by the Kefauver committee.

Football Hall of Fame Missed Two

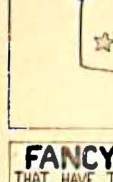
By GRANTLAND RICE

NEW YORK—It was generally understood by everyone concerned or interested that football's Hall of Fame Honor Court was bound to make a few mistakes getting underway. Oversights were sure to occur in trying to name the first group of All-America entries. The selecting committee, headed by Bill Cunningham, did a first-class job.

It made errors of omission. The two notable mistakes were leaving Charley Brickley off and not entering Jock Sutherland as one of the great coaches of all time. It was ridiculous, of course, to say that Dr. Sutherland didn't belong in the first 20 named. The good Doctor belonged in the first five, headed by Rockne and Haughton. He was one of the best.



Grantland Rice

Rockne and Haughton were the two tops. Unless you bring in Pop Warner who invented more plays than all the others put together. Pop happens to be the author of the single and double wing that is now knocking the T cockeyed. "How I'd like to have a sock at that 'T,'" Pop told me last fall. "It would be murder!"

You don't think so? How about Princeton, Tennessee, Southern California, Kentucky, Texas, UCLA (the team that wrecked California), Michigan, Illinois—in fact all of the good teams in the game—all single wing. Or nearly all. It must prove something.

Yes, Rockne, Haughton and Pop Warner would have to head the list. They are the Big Three of the coaches. They gave football more than anyone else. No one can dispute their positions.

But I still say Jock Sutherland belongs in the first five. Perhaps you don't remember the time Jock made Notre Dame break off her schedule with Pittsburgh after Pittsburgh had almost wrecked the South Bend Irish through six years?

Jock was wrecking most of them at that time. His one mistake was trying to overpower Fordham's great line without a pass. Jock failed to score in three consecutive years.

But he was one of the best—a master of the running attack. He never liked the pass. That was Jock's weakness. It was the way Howard Jones wrecked him through the air.

But Jock was thinking in terms of older and better football—of running, tackling, timing, kicking—not of the basketball innovation. He was a master of precision.

Too Many Stars

The group selected to name the first Hall of Fame list was certain to blow more than one great star. This couldn't be helped with so many hundreds waiting to be called.

As my friend Dan Parker suggested—"What about Elmer Oliphant—probably Army's greatest player?"

Elmer was also Purdue's greatest star.

Football has ten stars to basketball's one. I mean college football. The pros are not listed in this College Hall of Fame scramble. Let the pros set up a Hall of Fame of their own.

For example, Otto Graham of Northwestern and the Browns would never have made a college Hall of Fame. Yet he is one of the greatest when you take in his pro career.

I would rate Baugh, Graham and Luckman as the greatest of all passers. Bob Waterfield isn't far away. As Al Smith kept saying—"Look at the record."

I have forgotten the exact number named for the first All-Time All-America squad from the Hall of Fame. But don't forget there have been at least 500 or more great football players. Baugh was also a great kicker along with Strong, Kercheval, Mooney and one or two others.

The Hall of Fame All-America Committee has a big job left in correcting its early mistakes. Especially in regard to Charley Brickley and Jock Sutherland, who should have been high in the first group.

The Hotter Sectors

Today there are just two hot football sections left. One is the Midwest—the other the Southwest.

No matter what teams meet in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, you'll generally find some 75,000 spectators on hand, afternoon or night.

Texas, SMU, TCU, Rice, Baylor and Texas A and M rarely miss capacity crowds.

There are sure signs now that the once tidal-wave interest in the East and South is fading.

I asked one well-known director what the reason for this was.

"Many reasons," he said. "The game has become too commercialized. The two-platoon system has undoubtedly driven thousands away from the game. The sight of forty-four men romping back and forth on play after play has become a boring sight. The crowds don't like it at all.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

New DU Film

A new full color and sound motion film entitled "Water is Life," will shortly be released by Ducks Unlimited, C. A. Gross, president of the famed international sportsmen's conservation organization announced today.

Produced by Ducks Unlimited (Canada) during the past summer months, the film depicts the vital necessity of water not only to wildlife but to the adjacent human life as well. Its theme dramatically portrays the economic value of a marsh.

"Water is Life," will be shown throughout the United States at meetings of Ducks Unlimited members and will also be available to other sportsmen's groups upon request. Producer Ormal I. Sprungman has employed the use of the breathtakingly realistic commercial Kodachrome for the first time in the new picture. Sprungman is the producer of many other Ducks Unlimited pictures during past years.

Break for Anglers

Two and one-half dollars of federal aid to make fishing better for the followers of old Ike Walton will be spent by the states during the coming year largely to find out what fish resources they have and what can be done to increase them, according to the National Wildlife Federation. The money comes from an excise tax on sport fishing tackle which was earmarked by a 1950 federal law known popularly as the Dingell-Johnson Act.

Twenty of the first 26 fund applications received by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service were for projects classified as "research." Apportionment of the first year's Dingell-Johnson collections, $2,574,910, was announced last Sept. 21 and by Nov. 1 project plans had been received from 12 of the 48 states.

John S. Gottschalk, assistant chief of the Service's federal aid branch, said when all applications are in he expects the first-year proportion to run about 70 per cent for investigations and 30 per cent for acquisition and development.

Utah Is First

Utah was first in with a plan to survey the fishing pressure, the extent of the angling harvest and its economic value to the state. Virginia will launch a similar study of game fish in impounded waters, going into fish growth rates and other biological factors. New Hampshire has been granted funds for two statewide surveys, one covering lakes and ponds, the other measuring fishing pressure and fish populations in streams of the Granite state.

Kentucky will experiment with farm ponds and make a scientific study of Kentucky Lake. Maine has filed fund applications for seven research projects, ranging from trout stream management to a creel census of ice fishing.

An Idaho project calls for a survey of spawning area in the Salmon River and tributaries. One of the purposes will be to estimate the losses if and when proposed Hells Canyon Dam is built on the Snake River, cutting off salmon runs from the Pacific.

A preponderance of research is expected at first under the Dingell-Johnson program because in most states fisheries investigations have lagged for lack of funds. Development projects, such as construction of new fishing lakes and stream improvement, will come later.

Similar Evolution

The older Pittman-Robertson federal-aid game program, started in 1937 with a tax on sporting arms and ammunition, went through a similar evolution. Most of the money went into research in the early years. During the 1950 fiscal year, however, 50 per cent of Pittman-Robertson funds went for development of wildlife areas and game habitat, 25 per cent for acquisition of game lands, and only 20 per cent for research. The remaining 5 per cent went for maintenance of prior developments and for coordination within the states.

A few states—Michigan, Missouri and Pennsylvania are good examples—have been carrying on fisheries research on their own for several years and are ready to start using federal aid money for development projects. Pennsylvania already has submitted plans for construction of a new fishing lake in the Pittsburgh region. On all Dingell-Johnson projects, as with the Pittman-Robertson game projects, the states must put up $1 to match each $3 of federal aid.

Color Unimportant

This will come as rankest heresy to many plug addicts, but we'll stick with the contention that the color of surface lures for bass isn't too important. Of course, most of them are made in a wide variety and pattern as regards color, but as anglers know, the great majority of them have neutral shades on the bottom—that portion which alone is visible to the fish.

The main factor in fishing surface lures is plug action.

Goldenrod

The goldenrod (genus Solidago) is claimed by more states as their official state flower than any other American plant. Nebraska adopted the goldenrod by legislative act in 1895, with Kentucky following in 1926 and Alabama in 1927. North Carolina claims the flower by "common consent."

Strength Important

High potency in an antimalarial drug is very important in its use. A drug like the chlorophenyl diaminopyrimidine need be taken in very small amount. The amount necessary is so small that unpleasant side effects and toxic reactions are avoided, and the cost of treatment is very low.

Varying Track Gauge Plagues Railroading

The tedious business of transshipping over railroad lines of varying track gauge is virtually unknown in America north of the Rio Grande. It nevertheless continues to complicate rail transportation at many places on six continents.

Pointing up this fact, is an old idea being tried anew on the Pyrenees-walled frontier between France and Spain.

There, a new-type railroad-car axle adjustable to variations in track width has recently come into use. Successful in its first tests, this French invention makes possible the transfer of cars from French tracks of standard gauge (4 feet, 8½ inches) to the broad-gauge Spanish tracks (5 feet, 6 inches), and vice versa. Expensive and time-consuming unloading and reloading are eliminated.

Standard gauge has earned the right to be so called, since it is now all but universal in the United States and Canada, Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy. It is found on every continent except rail-less Antarctica. It prevails in Soviet-satellite countries of eastern Europe, where freight moving toward Moscow must be transshipped on Russian rails of five-foot gauge.

The odd width of the standard gauge came about, records show, because European rail wagons of the 17th century had wheels set five feet apart and rolled on flanged tracks. Transfer of the flange from rail to wheel produced the track gauge of 4 feet, 8½ inches.

Railroads of today employ a score of different gauges ranging from less than two feet up to 5½ feet as in Spain. Gauges of 3 to 3½ feet prevail in many mountainous regions where lighter trains for steeper-than-average grades are desirable.

Balloon's Lift Comes From Volume of Gas

The lifting power of a balloon depends on the volume of gas contained in the balloon. The forces that raise it are the same as those that keep a ship floating in water. That is, the lift is equal to the difference in weight between the gas that is in the bag and the air which the bag displaces.

A thousand cubic feet of air at sea-level pressure weighs 81 pounds, while the same volume of hydrogen at similar pressure weighs only 6 pounds. Thus, 1000 cu. ft. of this gas will lift a total of 81 minus 6, or 75 pounds, in which, of course, the balloon itself must be included. Since 1000 cu. ft. of helium weighs 11 pounds, this would lift only 70 pounds.

The balloon stops rising when it reaches a level where the atmosphere is so thin that the displaced air weighs the same as the enclosed gas.

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE —NOT GOOD FOOD

• Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Shearer Advises

an educational institution in California should have a record of unquestioned loyalty to fundamental American principles," Shearer asserted. "In my opinion Dr. Conner does not meet this acid test. Conner testified before a State Senate Commitee that the Building America textbook series should be used in California schools. The committee found that these textbooks were absolute'y loaded with subversive and communistic propaganda."

Conner Shearer stated, had made a study of the Building America series and "whether through ignorance or design he found the books o. k. It is obvious that a man who put his stamp of approval on subversive propaganda whether through failure to recognize the facts or an attempt to cover them up has no place at the head of a California institution of higher learning."

Shearer ascribed Conner as "one of the Simpson crowd in the State educational structure. Simpson, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has also been mentioned as a possible president of San Diego State according to rumors circulating in Los Angeles last month," Shearer continued.

"We cannot afford to have any man who has given aid to alien communistic elements within our society placed in a position to guide the destinies of several thousand San Diego young people anymore than we can afford to have a Communist saboteur as Secretary of State or the Defense Department," Shearer concluded. "Simpson's recent defense of Dr. Harry C. Steinmetz, whose record of Red affiliation is well known, in my opinion disqualifies him as an acceptable candidate for any educational post."
